The forums are dying, that's true. But have you stopped to consider school has started again? I haven't been on the forums around this time but I can assume that most people have to take a break to focus on school cause it aint easy.

I mean sure, there is a bit of negativity, but that has pretty much died out. What most people are leaving for is school or other personal reasons, not related to the drama recently. Thus, I don't think we can really think the forums are toxic anymore. There are no flame wars at this moment and sure people are sad but there are still forumfics, still roleplays, nothing has really changed except for perception and the amount of people.

I realize I could be wrong. I joined early this summer, so I don't know what it is like when people are at school. But this is just what I think.

The forums are like tides. They usually go through phases where it's full- like recently, though i wouldn't know since I haven't been on recently- and then when there's not much activity. There's always another group of people that rises up to replace the ones that leave. That's kinda how it works

Like Ghost said, this is nothing new. The forum goes through changes but things usually go back to normal. This place is only toxic if you make it toxic.
